

Help the Birds!

Did you know that in America, 365 million to 1 billion birds die every year from collisions with glass?

Create bird-friendly windows

Did you know that the bird cutouts on the North Gym windows don't work? Special windows with almost-invisible dots on them can stop birds from flying into windows and dying from the collisions.

Reduce light pollution

During spring and fall, which are peak migration seasons, turn off non-essential lights from 11 PM to 6 AM, or shield them downward to avoid birds getting confused. This also saves energy and money.

Keep cats indoors

Outdoor cats cause a very large number of bird deaths, harming their populations. Keeping cats inside is a very effective way to save birds.

Stop pesticide and herbicide use

Pesticides and herbicides not only harm birds, but they harm the entire ecosystem in your yard and beyond. Stopping the use of chemicals and using eco-friendly ways to protect your yard will stop birds from getting poisoned.
